Classroom Announcement Tips

One of the most feared things in the world along with spiders and heights is public speaking, yet in most business courses you will have at least one presentation in every class. Luckily you have us to provide you with the tools you need to not only improve your public speaking, but also to excel at it. Here are a few basics you should follow to improve your speeches.

For everything:

- Keep it short and simple. It's usually hard to get the attention of an audience present for a different purpose, so give your speech in quick, short, concise points. Shoot for less than five minutes.
- Play to your strengths. If you are particularly good at a speech technique, use that. There is no one way to give a good announcement. As long as the message is received, the audience doesn't care how you do it
- Become familiar as possible with the topic at hand. It is always a good idea to memorize what you have to say. At BAP, we can provide you with a PPT and maybe even some flyers to hand out.
- Speak with confidence. If you aren't confident in what you're saying, your audience won't be confident in your message.
- Deliver it with a partner. Sometimes all it takes to soften your nerves is the calming presence of a friendly person. It can also be a good bonding activity.

For BAP:

- Let your audience know where to find more information. Either legibly write our website on the board (csuebbap.club) or tell your audience to take pictures of it on the last slide of the PPT, or both.
- Be sure the professor knows you're coming. Email them first! Not only would it be rude to show up unannounced, it would tear away at the professionalism associated with BAP that we try so hard to maintain and improve
 - The email should include who you are representing, why you are announcing, and how much time you need.Most importantly, have fun talking about Beta Alpha Psi! Use your time to practice talking and persuading someone to join BAP. One day you will be persuading your boss to give you a raise so now is the time to practice! Feel free to ask us questions at any time; We're here to help. Good luck!
